Event Write-up (Detailed Information):-

INTRODUCTION

A two hours workshop on Basic Life Support Training was organized by the Disaster Management Committee and Front Office Department of BCIBMCT (Banarsidas Chandiwala Institute of Hotel Management and Catering Technology), for the students, staff and faculty of BCIBMCT. The workshop was conducted by Dr. Purnima Kushwaha and Dr. Megha Arya, Assitant Professors, BCIP (Banarsidas Chandiwala Institute of Physiotherapy).

The session was initiated by the Director of BCIP Mr. C.S Ram, he told students about the importance of first aid, and about its importance in hotel industry.

After that, principal of BCIBMCT Prof. R.K. Bhandari enlightened students and appreciated the initiative to teach students about first aid in which CPR is also included.

Activities Conducted During the Programme

1. Complete Procedure Of Checking Human Body.

The following steps were instructed and demonstrated by Dr. Kushwaha and Dr. Arya:

Danger. Before approaching the casualty, always make sure the area is safe.

Response. Check if the casualty is responsive or unresponsive. As you approach them, introduce yourself and ask them questions to see if you can get a response. Kneel next to their chest and gently shake their shoulders, asking, 'What has happened?', 'Open your eyes!'

- If the casualty opens their eyes, or gives another gesture, they are responsive.
- If they do not respond to you in any way they are unresponsive and should be treated as quickly as possible.

Airway. Next, you need to check that the airway is open and clear. Open the airway by placing one hand on the forehead to tilt the head back and use two fingers from the other hand to lift the chin.

- If they are unresponsive, you need to move on to breathing as quickly as possible.

Breathing. You now need to check if the casualty is breathing normally. Place your ear above their mouth, looking down their body. Listen for sounds of breathing and see if you can feel their breath on your cheek. Watch to see if their chest moves. Do this for 10 seconds.

- If they are unresponsive and not breathing, you need to call 112 for emergency help and start CPR straight away. Ask a helper to find and bring a defibrillator (AED).
- If they are responsive and breathing move on to circulation.

Circulation. Once you have established they are breathing, look and check for any signs of severe bleeding.

- If they are bleeding severely you will need to control and treat the bleeding by applying direct pressure to the wound. Call 112 for emergency help.
- If they are unresponsive and breathing but with no bleeding, put them in the recovery position and call 112 for emergency help.

If there are no injuries and the person is breathing, raise the person's legs above heart level if possible. Prop up the person's legs about 12 inches (30 centimeters). Loosen belts, collars or other tight clothing. To reduce the chance of fainting again, don't get the person up too fast.

What to do if someone is unresponsive

1. Open their airway
2. Tilt head
3. Check for normal breathing for up to 10 seconds
- 4a. If they're breathing normally:
Put them in the recovery position. Then call 112 for emergency help
- 4b. If they're not breathing. Call 112 for emergency help. Start CPR

What to do if someone is unresponsive and not breathing normally

1. Call for help Tell them to call 112 and find an AED.
2. Pump Give 30 Chest compressions at a rate of 100– 120 per minute.
3. Breathe Give two rescue breaths. If unwilling or unable, do chest pumps only.
4. Continue to pump and give rescue breaths until help arrives.

2. Trial On Dummy By Students

Trainers taught students the CPR procedure on a dummy body. Students actively participated and took initiative to learn individually.

The workshop primarily targeted students of all the batches of BCIHMCT. The event provided them with an opportunity to learn about Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) and using a Automated External Defibrillator (AED).

Dear Team BCIHMCT,

This is to express our heartfelt thanks and gratitude for organizing the short-term SKILL ENHANCEMENT course in Bakery and Confectionery for our 20 students of KATHA, which is an NGO for the underprivileged and does work for the community.

Our students enjoyed the 6 days (15th to 20th July) of Practical and Theoretical training at BCIHMCT Laboratory, provided by Chef Amit Kumar and Chef Amit Thakur and overall coordinated by Chef Ranojit Kundu – HOD Bakery & Pastry.

The training imparted, in sync with the NIOS syllabus, has significantly enhanced our students' knowledge and understanding. This will undoubtedly have a positive impact on their future careers and exams.

We greatly appreciate the seamless coordination and communication between our organizations during this course. We eagerly look forward to future collaborations that are as successful as this one.

On the second day, the girls were trained in techniques to prevent attacks involving guns and knives, as well as methods to avoid kidnapping and respond to inappropriate touches in public areas. Techniques included using elbow strikes to the face, groin, and other vulnerable body parts, and methods to prevent choking. The session also covered how to defend against acid attacks and chain snatching, common crimes women face.

The third day focused on reviewing the techniques learned in the first two days. Students were then taught how to escape from body locks and free themselves when pinned down by an attacker. Mr. Jhanjot concluded the session by commending the students' attentiveness and wishing them well.

The fourth day was dedicated to revising and practicing the techniques learned throughout the workshop. The day also included meditation and mental relaxation sessions. The program concluded on 21st August with a final review of all the techniques and physical strengthening exercises

Women in Data Program

Program Brief

The program focuses on equipping young women with essential technical skills in one of the most upcoming and coveted career option of data and analytics. The program aligns with governments agenda of gender inclusion in economic activities. This program will provide industry-recognized data course certifications to the beneficiaries and enhance their employability quotient through communication, skill building workshops.

Project Description

Women have largely been underrepresented in Technology / STEM fields in the country. Reports state that only 34% of the technology workforce is represented by women. Though the percentage of women entering the technology workforce is gradually increasing, there is still a wide gap in the gender ratio especially as women progress in higher positions in the industry. In addition, only a small percentage of women are graduating in STEM fields or pursuing STEM related careers. Lack of opportunities for providing exposure and experience to women to develop knowledge and interest in STEM areas, lack of growth opportunities for women at higher positions in STEM fields and lack of employability skills are some of the major reasons leading to the decline of women in the technology workforce.

The project aims to encourage women to build their interest, knowledge, and expertise in a high-demanding STEM career field, enhance their job readiness skills and provide them an opportunity to increase their employability quotient in the technology workforce

Project Objectives:

- Provide an opportunity for the beneficiaries to build their knowledge and skills in the career path of data and analytics.
- To provide an opportunity to the beneficiaries to hone their job readiness skills through focused skill building workshops

Proposal for Collaboration:

We propose to collaborate with the students' community associated with your colleges & take them through the nuances of the Data Analytics. Women pursuing graduate studies in Science / Commerce / Arts / B.Tech. & other relevant graduate courses/Diploma/ ITI students

Building A Facilitative Ecosystem For Circularity!

THE EDITOR'S NOTE

Dear Readers
Greetings!

In the recent years, as a matter of urgency and economic imperative, the emerging global discourse on sustainability has pushed the agenda of circularity at the forefront. Infact, the recently concluded G20 summit and CoP28 summit have also reiterated the need for a collective and collaborative approach to address the same. Also, for India, the discussion around circularity (especially in the context of EEE sector) has become all the more relevant and significant, as it aspires to become a Developed, Net Zero and Global Digital Economy. Infact, the ongoing discourse of sustainable electronics within the purview of circularity, is actively discussing aspects like changing connotation of e-waste, green design, lifecycle management vs end-of-life management, resource efficiency, CRM & SRM availability, circular economy indicators, integration of informal sector, stakeholders' responsibility & awareness, role of industry, and policy push to build a facilitative ecosystem for circularity.

So, in this backdrop, the January (2024) edition of EcoTech Talks covers perspectives on circularity with respect to EEE sector. We certainly hope that these insights will educate and inspire the concerned stakeholders to take a step ahead in building a facilitative ecosystem and making a gradual transition towards substantive circularity. Have a happy reading!

Warm regards

RETHINKING CIRCULARITY

CIRCULARITY AND EEE SECTOR:

THE EXPERT OPINION

Rethinking Circular Economy w.r.t. EEE sector

Dr Sandip Chatterjee
Group Coordinator/Senior Director
Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (GoI)

Electronic and electrical equipments (EEE) are highly material consuming sector and critically dependent on supply chain of range of precious and rare earth metals. Rate of extraction of these resources is significantly higher than the rate of their formation in nature. India is the third largest consumer of raw materials produced globally and is estimated to consume nearly 15 billion tonnes of material by 2030.

Due to fast obsolescence, with improved functionality, the consumers are forced to discard their devices and electronics waste (e-waste) is thus growing at an exponential pace. EEE waste is, however, one of the rich sources of secondary raw materials and can contribute towards resource security and environmental sustainability.

Circular economy (CE) approach is, therefore, imperative to fulfil the resource need of the country. CE is an alternative industrial system, as against highly extractive and resource-intensive linear economy which follows take-make-dispose approach. It replaces the end-of-life concept with restoration and regeneration, employs superior design of materials, products, systems and innovative business models for waste elimination.

Government of India had formulated an action plan to implement CE principle in the e-waste sector, which prioritized adoption of CE in entire life cycle of EEE products. To focus on end-of-life management, it stressed upon utilization of secondary raw material to lay strong foundation for expansive adoption of CE principles and retaining value of resources. The products and materials are being encouraged at its maximum use through reuse, repair, recover, recycling and remanufacturing at the end of each service value to minimize wastage at each life-cycle stage.

Further, in order to address significant loss of secondary raw material, capacity building of informal sector has been emphasised to boost collection, ensure resource efficiency in segregation and recycling. International standards including R2, e-Stewards, EU's CEN/CENELAC standards have also been stressed to adopt in entire value chain.

Action plan has also emphasised material acquisition and green design for electronics products, so as to bring out a "Sustainable Product Policy", Green Skill Development Programme, Green public procurement (GPP) etc. in-line with global framework and best practices. An institutional arrangement was also envisioned to track critical raw materials and setting up of sampling labs to assess the secondary material presence in products.

Circular Economy indicator is another parameter, which could help in assessing the commitment of the producers towards sustainability. Incentivising manufacturers was proposed through CE indicator rating, which could be assessed through the usage of secondary raw material in new products, recyclable design, adoption of internationally harmonized resource efficiency/ circular economy etc. A policy to identify sustainable product to offer preference under the PLI scheme and Green Public procurement are the future action plans in order to ensure behavioural change in the business process by the manufacturers. Guidelines for promotion of product lease model for bulk consumers in public sector to boost repaired and refurbished market would also be considered in near future.

The Right to Repair Act was also envisaged to provide consumers' access to affordable repaired mobile phones, appliances and other electronic devices by original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) or third-party repairers to promote refurbished products and longer life of the products of existing users.

Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (MeitY) has initiated activities to realise the action plans. The programmes/projects initiated, so far, include Awareness and Capacity Building on CE in E-waste; Entrepreneurial Skill Development in E-waste Management (Dismantling, Segregation); Upgradation of Informal Sector by Setting up of MSME Cluster with Indigenous Technologies; Development of Cost-effective Processing Technology of Printed Circuit Boards, Li-ion batteries, spent magnets, solar panel etc.

Besides, a study has been carried out to learn international best practices on available technologies, utilisation of secondary raw material, tracking of critical raw materials etc. In addition, in order to promote state-of-art e-waste recycling facility in the country, the existing subsidy scheme, viz. Scheme for Promotion of

Manufacturing of Electronic Components and Semiconductors (SPecs) has been amended to provide financial incentive of 25% on capital expenditure for extraction of precious metals from e-waste components, including PCBs (both populated and bare), Li-ion batteries, spent magnets, solar PV panels, catalytic converters and any other components from electronics waste (any one component or in combination).

GREEN MESSAGE BY GREEN WOMEN LEADER

To motivate and inspire the youth to build and strengthen culture of sustainability, two remarkable Green Women Leaders (Dr. Vibha Dhawan and Dr. Deeksha Katyol) shared their Green Messages for wider dissemination, on the occasion of National Energy Conservation Day (14th December, 2023) and National Pollution Control Day (2nd December, 2023) respectively.
